or less along said centerline of an existing road bed to a point on the south line of said Section 2.

Basis of Bearings is Wyoming State Plane: East Central Zone.

3. Said easement shall be appurtenant to the Dominant Property and shall be construed as an easement running with the Dominant Property and may be used by Grantee, his guests, agents, successors in interest, heirs and assigns.
4. Grantors may use the right-of-way and easement for any purpose not inconsistent with the rights granted to Grantee herein, including the right to use this easement for access to Grantors' property. Grantee may replace an existing gate (a total of one currently exists) with a cattleguard at his expense provided such cattleguard is constructed in an elevated fashion to minimize hazards to horses, are a minimum of twelve feet wide, utilize flat top components for the portion of the cattleguard which is used as a traveling surface. Grantee may move existing fencing at his own expense to prevent the interference of said fencing with the use of the easement. However, existing fencing shall be considered to remain for the convenience of the parties with permission until Grantee deems movement of the fencing to be necessary. Grantors reserve the right to fence or cross-fence the easement. However, if the easement is cross fenced, Grantors and Grantee, at Grantee's election, may install cattleguards at each cross-fence. The cost of installing cattleguards at new cross fences shall be split equally between the Grantors and Grantee and the type will be as set forth above.
5. Maintenance and improvement costs, if any, will be based upon use by the parties and further agreement between the parties. However, either party may complete maintenance and improvements at their sole expense without the consent of the other party provided that such maintenance and improvements do not interfere with the rights granted herein.
6. This agreement is binding upon the heirs, assigns and successors in interest of the parties.

DATED this 19th day of April, 2002.
